

Vintage modern

Designer Charlotte Lucas is known for her bold use of color and pattern, and both are on brilliant display in this warm-hued study. Lucas turned a space previously used for storage into a vinyl-listening room, where the homeowner can entertain and enjoy his favorite passion — music. The Los Angeles-based clients, who have family in the Queen City, wanted their Charlotte house to feel like home. To achieve this, Lucas added touches such as framed prints of the client's photography and an oversized vintage Murano chandelier. Though the space was primarily designed with the husband in mind, the floral fringed sofa adds a sophisticated, feminine touch, creating a cozy, versatile space.

"Our clients are always our inspiration behind my designs. We wanted the space to feel both masculine and feminine, so that both husband and wife would enjoy and live in the room."
